Class of 1912 to Celebrate Silver Anniversary

ALUMNI festivities connected with graduation will take place this year on Sunday, May 30, which will be known as Alumni Day for 1937. This day will find the returning graduates of the class of 1912, the 25-year class, enjoying the spotlight. In honor of the silver celebration of this group, A. C. Fuller, director of the Alumni Bureau, announces that they will be guests of the College on Alumni Day. It has been a long-time tradition to thus honor the returning graduates who received their diplomas a quarter of a century ago.

Also especially invited this year are alumni whose class numerals end in 2 or 7, this also being in accord with tradition, that of choosing for special attention classes five years on either side of the honor group. But Mr. Fuller declares that all former graduates "or any in-laws or friends" are most cordially invited to return, meet old friends, and look things over.

Keynote of the festivities will be informality—and plans are being moulded with this keynote in view. Following the custom of the past two years, activities will begin with the baccalaureate services Sunday morning. By 11:30 A.M., thinks Mr. Fuller, alumni should be free to gather in the Commons, social and recreational center of the College, for an initial get-together. The annual alumni dinner will then follow at 12:30 P.M., in the Commons, this event probably being the most "organized" of those arranged for Alumni Day. The class of 1912 will receive complimentary tickets for the dinner. The afternoon will be occupied with visiting between old friends, between one-time students and their former instructors—and between one-time students and old and new buildings on the campus.

To aid and abet these get-togethers, Mr. Fuller has arranged for a "patron" to assist each of the honor classes, or those with numerals ending in 2 or in 7. These patrons will make it their special duty to aid alumni in finding classmates or former instructors whom they may wish to see, in finding reserved space at the dinner, and in guiding alumni to new and old spots on the Teachers College campus.

Emma F. Lambert, M. Di. '97, professor of mathematics at Teachers College, is president of the Alumni Association, and Clarence M.

"Come Home," Says Alumni President

GREETINGS to the thousands of alumni of Iowa State Teachers College scattered throughout the state, the nation, and the world. We wish it were in our power to make it possible for the whole family to come home this re-union time. We wish it were in your power to come. We want you to see the growth in your old home, the great improvements on the campus—our beautiful Commons—the changes in offices and equipment, the changes in the curricula, all prophetic of a bigger, better college to come. We want you to know our new president, Dr. Latham, who is so ably carrying on the work of Dr. Seerley. We want you to meet your old classmates once more. We want you to hear the campanile chimes again. We want you to come home! Especially do we want the classes whose numerals are two and seven, and most especially the class of 1912, our Silver Anniversary class. Come!"—Miss Emma Lambert, B. Di. '96, Professor of Mathematics at the college and president of the Alumni Association.

Ransom, B. A. '26, superintendent of schools at Parkersburg, is vice-president. Members of the Cedar Falls committee in charge of arrangements are Mrs. Horan Dunbar, J. C. '25; Miss E. Grace Rait, B. A. '20, associate professor of teaching, and Mrs. Besse Powell Oleson, P. S. M. '15.

As a new wrinkle in alumni affairs, Mr. Fuller is sending to all numeral 2 or 7 classes this year a list of their classmates and where they are now, if their whereabouts are known. A second list—with a call for "Help! Help!"—will give those alumni whose present addresses are unknown. Yet a third group will name those who are known to be deceased.

★ The Week's Events

If any student be bored with extra-curricular life at college—that is, at Teachers College—it's not because there aren't enough places to go, enough things to do. At the present rate, over 900 extra-curricular events per quarter occur on the campus, about 2,700 in a school year. The enterprising activities committee of the Student Council sent to press about the middle of the winter quarter first copy for a new weekly folder, christened "The Week's Events." The purpose of the publication, distributed free and listing both special and regular events, is to supply students with an accurate reminder and to prevent confusing conflicts in the round of events.

★ What the Photographer Found

Appearance of "The Week's Events" stirred up for George H. Holmes, director of the Publicity Bureau, an idea. He sent News Bureau Assistant Leroy Furry, B. A. '35, to cover with a candid camera all events of a bulletin's week, February 15 to 21. Cameraman Furry zig-zagged over, and off, the campus for some 80 occasions, finished the week with over 200 shots. With camera and tripod he got them, catching sorority gatherings formal and informal, piercing the dimmest of lights in fraternity meeting rooms, halting mastication at club luncheons, asking "who's the president" at formal dinners, breaking in on secret ritual, snapping girls modeling clay, running lathes, swimming, rehearsing esthetic dancing; walking in on an opera rehearsal, shooting glee clubs and choruses (pausing to hear their music), visiting dances, grunting with the wrestlers at a wrestling meet, and so on, to the very end. Noticeable while the project was in progress were a number of students appearing frequently at various gatherings, proof of their energy and leadership. Practical outcome: a display of the infinite variety of campus activities, a library of pictures on student life. Philosophical outcome: people like to have their pictures taken.

★ Students Also Forget

Professors may be absent minded. But so are students. One co-ed, whose home is in Cedar Falls, drove her parents' car to school one day. That evening after school she waited several hours for a ride home, thinking to save car-fare. Only when home was she reminded of her lapse of memory.

★ Arrived: One "Cut System"

For the first time in the history of Teachers College, students will enjoy the luxury of a "cut system" during the spring quarter. Frankly as an experiment, the faculty voted a plan on February 23 whereby all previous rules are suspended and all absences are recorded only by the instructor in charge. No reprisals or loss of credit hang over the student's head. Of course, an instructor may tumble grades if he believes a student is taking untoward advantage of the plan. But at least during the spring quarter college men and women will not have to plead their cause before a dean for the favor of an official excuse; with loss of credit in the offing if the excuse is refused.

When news of the "cut system" spread over the campus, students appeared gratified, but sobered with the realization that on their own actions will depend the future of their baby, the cut system. For it really is their baby, the prize of long periods of study and discussion, with a final appeal to the faculty through a studied proposal of the Student Council, presented in due order to the Faculty Welfare Committee. The College Eye, under the editorship of Gwendolyn Wescott, had for some time carried stories and editorials on a cut system, and just before the faculty vote, devoted the entire editorial page to the proposal. Said Dean of Faculty M. J. Nelson, "This change in rules is made for the sole purpose of determining experimentally whether or not the student body can use personal freedom responsibly." And the student body seems to realize that the change means that very thing.

★ No More Hell Week (Maybe)

Fraternities, through the Inter-fraternity Council, poked away at the traditional but weakening institution of hell week during the winter quarter. Opinion veered toward the consensus that no more dead cat hunts or the like will smell up the ceremonies—maybe. The following recommendations, suggested by the Council, were approved by the fraternities: (1) all initiation activities be limited to respective fraternity houses, except on Friday and Saturday nights; (2) hell week shall not interfere with school work to such an extent that grades suffer; and (3) all activities shall be such that they shall neither jeopardize the reputation of the fraternity nor the person of the student. The recommendations met little opposition. Lending the weight of their support to the change were Dean of Men Leslie I. Reed, Dr. L. L. Sage, and Dr. A. E. Brown, advisers to the Council. The Interfraternity Council, formerly controlled by two politically wise fraternities, now contains two men from each of the five bodies on the campus.

★ Manners and Rough Diamonds

Raw masculine charm and stuff became grossly insulted, as the new year got under way, with a letter on the manners of Teachers College men, published in the College Eye under the title, "To the Fellows—From a Freshman Girl." Arousing a storm of comment, the letter was written by a young woman student who had just completed a required course in social usage in company with other freshman women. The young lady wished that the men might put on a little of the same polish. After the writer coated the pill by declaring that the men were "pretty nice fellows under the rough surface," she pointed out a "few suggestions" to put the men "back at the top in our estimation." Then followed such points of etiquette as tipping the hat (which really "got" the boys), conversing on the street, entering and leaving theatres, streetcars and automobiles, ordering refreshments, asking for dates, and behaving at dances, even the informal "rec" dances.

In the following week's College Eye, three columns on the editorial page were consumed with fuming answers, one being written in defense of the men by "a loyal sophomore girl." Three men, signing themselves as "Rough Diamonds," supplied an ironical tirade with the keynote that "diamonds are very hard to polish and we pray you bear with us as we strive to knock off our rough edges." The bit on hat tipping evoked scorn. Holding doors open for women was another point which aroused the male dander. The men also staunchly defended their right to wear sweaters at informal dances, one offering the polemic that "dancing is supposed to be enjoyed, not suffered."

When the smoke had partly cleared, an alumna offered probably the sanest advice of all. Said she: "The essence of good social usage is thoughtful consideration of others." Consolation came to the freshman girl who had begun the discussion when she was highly praised for her letter by faculty of the college.

(Note: a social usage course is now required of all freshman women and a test of the same subject matter included in the placement testing program. It is expected that the men students will take such tests and a similar program of study soon.)

★ Pioneers of 1937

A hard nut to crack for many oldsters is the fact that the pioneer spirit exists in present day society just as it existed when the country was younger. Today's youngsters can be hard-working individuals, with the simple difference that they are working under conditions different from those which required of their ancestors the same spirit. For example, reports from the offices of the deans indicate that 28 per cent of the women and 55 per cent of the men at the Teachers College are now working their way through school, either in whole or in part. To these college men and women, such activity is comparable to building a home in the wilderness; today, people like to call it carving a niche in society. Of the 353 co-eds who are earning a part of their college expenses, 138 are performing secretarial and other office work under the National Youth Administration. Of the 321 employed men, 71 are working under the same assistance. (In the pioneer days government assisted the people by selling land cheap or by giving it to homesteaders.) Approximately 20 of the men consider a college education so important that they are working eight hours a day in addition to performing their school work. One young man works nine hours each night. Most men work for board or room, do janitor or stenographic work; but jobs range in nature from "peeling spuds"—and onions—to milking cows and to mending smashed thumbs in an industrial plant. In addition to board and room and stenographic work, many co-eds are employed as waitresses. But here again the type of work shows variation: several women read for blind students, one co-ed is a beauty parlor operator, another develops and prints pictures.

★ Lace on Their Pajamas

Appealing to students during the winter quarter were statements on language attributed to W. B. Fagan, of the English Department. He asserted in a talk at a faculty meeting, as reported in the College Eye, that no one could say definitely what correct English should be, because standards of language are established by prevalence of use. Said he: "People, especially men, who continue to say 'awnt' for aunt or 'bean' for been, because they think these forms are more cultivated, must wear lace on their pajamas." Mr. Fagan was not reported to have discussed any of the night shirt varieties of speech.

★ This Year's Beauties

Six young co-eds emerged from three rounds of competition as the Old Gold beauties of 1937. The winners: Ruth Broughton, Sibley, sponsored by Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity; Jean Dunkleberg, Waterloo, Alpha Beta Gamma sorority; Evelyn Sernet, Rolfe, Catholic Students Association; Myrtle Telleen, Gowrie, Alpha Chi Epsilon fraternity; and Frances Williams, Waterloo, Pi Tau Phi sorority. These five were picked the night of the Old Gold beauty dance by cameraman George Yates, of Des Moines, from the twelve elected by the student body from the nineteen previously nominated by various campus organizations. As an innovation, cameraman Yates picked from a slightly uneasy dance crowd Dorothy Jean Peterson, Granite Falls, Minnesota, escorted by Wayne Van Deest, Cedar Falls. Exclaimed escort Van Deest: "I'm prouder than if I were the father of six boys!" Smiled cameraman Yates, "I had a jolly good time."

★ Bulletins, Timetables and Grandfather

"College catalogs are something like railroad timetables," said Dean of Faculty M. J. Nelson in discussing the new Teachers College bulletin. "They're hard to get on to, and after you've read them you don't get much out of them." The new catalog, however, bore sure signs of Dean Nelson's determination to rid it of such a description. Notable among the changes are larger type, a new paper stock more pleasing in appearance and easier on the eyes, and the addition of pictures . . . Changes in content included the official designation of "term" as "quarter." Dean Nelson pointed out a continuation of a significant trend in college entrance requirements, being made in favor of the so-called vocational subjects, such as bookkeeping and manual training, at the expense of the academic subjects, such as English and the social sciences. Dean Nelson saw no cause for alarm in the trend, asserted that the success of a student in college did not depend much on what he studied in high school. When grandfather was a lad, Dean Nelson said, the style in education demanded Latin; now the style leans toward vocational subjects.

★ Piano Virtuoso; Death

When Rudolph Ganz, piano virtuoso, appeared on the stage of the auditorium, sat down before the grand piano, a musical event of the first importance began at the Teachers College. No sooner had firm, supple fingers touched the keys than the audience—a full house—sensed brilliance and perfection. Three encores at the conclusion of the concert were not enough. As some began to put on their coats, half the audience congregated about the platform, demanded more. Then all stood silent, motionless as Ganz played Liszt's "Song of Love." . . . In the midst of the final applause, Ganz brought onto the stage Miss Alta Freeman, long a student of his, and for 14 years a member of the Teachers College faculty. Miss Freeman smiled, laughed heartily at a chance remark, and the audience returned it. Nine days later she died, a victim of pneumonia.

★ Glorious Variety

Not lacking in variety or number of entertainments were students in the winter quarter. Tutor Ticklers, the annual student show that pokes sly fun at college life, played to full houses on two successive nights. Winning entree act, which stole the show, pictured a delightful album of the Teachers College of the 90's and was presented by the Women's Athletic Association. Most of the audience wondered how the girl dressed as a boy holding an apple for teacher could stand so still, thought at first she was a waxen figure. Winning main act found the Tau Sigma Delta social sorority presenting a witty and original "Noah's Lark." To the Student Loan Fund went the proceeds of the show.

★ "Kind Lady"

A murderless, detectiveless crime play, "Kind Lady," an adaptation from a novel by Hugh Walpole, and directed by Hazel Strayer, proved a breath-bating fare for drama lovers attending this mid-winter selection. Described as a "psychological nightmare," the drama depicted a charming, middle-aged lady of London, who is beset by a master-minded crook whom she befriends, and by his band of followers. As the crooks gain control of the household, the audience wonders why something can't be done about it, sends urgent telepathic communications to the Kind Lady, to aid her in a moment of distress.

★ Oh Toreador!

Mention of grand opera is likely to leave many people cold, stir others to warm anticipation. Granting that grand opera, probably the highest, most difficult form of musical or dramatic presentation, is something like an olive—people have to learn to like it—nevertheless, many become addicts after one or two tastes. So it was with those who witnessed, on March 11 and 12, Bizet's fiery "Carmen," presented ably by students of the Music Department under the direction of W. E. Hays, assistant professor of voice. Much in evidence on the campus after the performances were whistlers of the rhythmic "Toreador Song;" some even attempted the plaintive "Habanera." A cast of 10 principals and 36 chorusers sang—in English—this music drama of the vivacious Spanish girl whose several loves finally lead to her death. Far did "Carmen" and the news announcements preceding it go to dispel the notion that grand opera itself is coated with ermine, draped with jewels, and suffers with too much stuffing in the stuffed-shirt. Granted, of course, that much yet remains to be done. Somebody, for example, ought to write and compose an American opera based on modern American life.

★ Successes

Other entertainment successes on the campus since the last Alumnus have included the Concert Band, scoring great applause on a Wagnerian excerpt and on a portion of Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suit." (Most radio listeners, when they heard the Grofe number, thought of a certain cigarette which they had heard advertised.) . . . The Symphony Orchestra played a concert, directed by Roland Searight, and a number of popular classical works, including the melodic "Unfinished Symphony" of Schubert. For a first number, Edward Kurtz, head of the Music Department, directed the organization in the "funeral march" from Beethoven's third Symphony, "Eroica," in memory of Alta Freeman . . . The Aeolian Glee Club, under the direction of Alpha Mayfield, presented selections of folk music, the songs that the common people of the world sing from generation to generation.

College "Profs" Have Fifty-Hour Work Week!

FEW people realize the extent to which faculty members of a college serve the institution and the state outside their regular hours in the classroom. When the layman is told that the average college professor spends 15 hours a week in the classroom, the question immediately asked is, "What on earth does a college professor do to earn his money?"

Three hours of classwork per day, to a total of 5 days a week! "What a snap," says the student who only sees his professor in the classroom. Little does the student or layman realize that the hours a professor spends in class are really a small part of the total time he spends in service to his students, to the institution, and to the state.

What Does a Professor Do?

He works 50 hours a week in service to the institution by which he is employed. Of this he spends 15 hours per week in his classes, devotes 13 hours in preparation for classes, 6 to reading of student papers, 5 hours in extension course work, 3.5 hours per week each in conferences with students and in research, 2 hours in advising students as to their courses of study, and 1 hour a week to committee, departmental, and faculty meetings, and 1 hour to other services. In addition to his institutional service, he is in considerable demand for talks to parent-teacher groups, educational societies, and clubs generally in the state in which he serves.

Information furnished by a study of some 86 faculty members selected at random from 12 teachers' colleges shows that only 30 per cent of the total service to the institution is spent in the classroom. Preparation for classes amounts to 26 per cent; reading of papers, 12 per cent; research, 7 per cent; conferences with students, 7 per cent; advisory duties, 4 per cent; and committee, departmental, and faculty meetings, and other services, 2 per cent each. Ten per cent of his time is devoted to extension service work.

These facts were revealed in a study made for the Teachers College Extension Association by a committee of which I. H. Hart, director of the College Extension Division, is chairman.

Even the figures reported above do not include service which is certainly characterized to improve the professional standing and breadth of view of the faculty, thus making them more efficient and successful as teachers. When these other activities are taken into consideration, one wonders not what a professor does with "all of his leisure time," but rather how he finds time to do all that he accomplishes.

Professional Activities Listed

In an endeavor to bring to the readers of The Alumnus some conception in the very active way in which Teachers College faculty members participate in affairs relative to teaching, the editor presents in this issue a new column which he hopes will become a regular offering; namely, "Professional Activities of the Faculty." It should be significant to note that in appealing to faculty members to list their activities on a specially prepared questionnaire, the editor has urged them to name only the more significant public appearances. Every active member of the faculty contributes in a professional way to innumerable small gatherings of a cultural nature both on and off the campus. Only the more significant of these will be listed in the column, but it is obvious to anyone that all of these contributions take much time and all must be considered when viewing the total contribution of the professor to the cause of education in the state.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES OF THE FACULTY

Find Your Favorite Professor!

Presented here for the first time is a column which The Alumnus hopes to present as a regular feature. Listed here you will find professional activities of members of the college instructional staff for the period beginning January 1 and ending April 1, 1937. Many of the events in which faculty will participate cannot be carried here, inasmuch as the questionnaires had to be completed in time for the Alumnus to go to press March 15. (See item on this page.)

Alison E. Aitchison, professor of geography, article, "Glimpses of Russian Agriculture," Midland Schools, March, 1937; presided as president at National Council of Geography Teachers, and attended Association of American Geographers at Syracuse, New York, from December 28 to January 2.

Annabelle Pollock, assistant professor of teaching, talk "Making the Most of Success and Failure," sponsored by Radio Child Study Club, broadcast over WOI and WSUI on March 10 and 11.

Dr. Marguerite Uttley, associate professor of geography, article "Guide Sheets in Geography," Midland Schools, February, 1937; talk, "Changes in Sand Utilization in the Dust Bowls," sponsored by Junior Iowa Academy of Science, broadcast over WOI and WSUI, January 21; attended National Council of Geography Teachers and Association of American Geographers at Syracuse, New York, December 28 to January 2.

Dr. Roy L. Abbott, professor of biology, book, "Mammals of Iowa," written by request of Iowa Academy of Science; article, "They Say, But--," Our Dumb Animals magazine, to be published soon; article, "Biography of a Frog," Natural History Magazine, American Museum of Natural History, February, 1937; article, "The Trail of the Jack," Christian Science Monitor, February 2, 1937; talk "A Scientist Inquires as to the Hereafter," Teachers College Auditorium, March 14, 1937.

Dora Kearney, assistant professor of teaching, attended convention of National Council of Teachers of Mathematics in Chicago, February 19 and 20.

Dr. C. W. Lantz, professor of biology, talk, "Conservation of Native Vegetation," at Finchford, Iowa, February 26, 1937, sponsored by Community Club; talk, "Conservation of Native Vegetation," before Cedar Falls Nature League, February 2, 1937; talk, "Wild Flowers of Iowa," at Waterloo, Iowa, March 2, 1937, sponsored by Waterloo Garden Club.

Kossuth County Alumni Organize Unit

On February 18 the Kossuth County Alumni Unit was organized at a dinner meeting at Hotel Algona in Algona. Immediately following the dinner, four Algona high school students, under the direction of DWane Collins, B. A. '31, furnished music. John G. McDowell, B. A. '31, principal of the high school in Algona, talked on "Looking at our Alma Mater from the Teaching Profession." A. C. Fuller, from the Bureau of Alumni Affairs, Teachers College, spoke on "The Alma Mater Looks at Her Alumni." Rev. Calvin Schnucker, B. A. '29, Titonka, chairman of the committee on arrangements and an energizing spirit generally, acted as master of ceremonies and outlined an appealing program on the topic, "The Alumni Serve the Alma Mater."

There was enthusiastic endorsement for the suggestion to maintain a permanent organization of this alumni unit. The committee members for 1937-38 are: Reverend Calvin Schnucker, B. A. '29, Titonka, chairman; Mrs. Jurgen Skow (Louise A. Nelson), B. Di '99, Wesley; and Mrs. John Mullins (Helen L. Chambers), B. A. '28, Wesley, committee on arrangements.

Death of Miss Alta Freeman Shocks Host of Friends

"She Was Noted Here for Her Pleasantness, an Especially Radiant Personality, And an Ability to Inspire Students," Says Editor of College Eye

Miss Alta Freeman, for 14 years a member of the Teachers College music faculty, died Monday morning, February 22, a victim of pneumonia. Her death, following a four-day illness, brought profound shock not only to members of the Music Department and to her friends, but also to those who have long been familiar with her public appearances as a piano soloist.

Miss Freeman became instructor in piano at the Teachers College in 1923. In 1933 she was made assistant professor. During her 14 years in Cedar Falls, she endeared herself to many pupils and distinguished herself as an artist of brilliance. Her last public appearance came February 8 when she was soloist with the Waterloo Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Alta Freeman

On March 14 she was brought onto the stage in the College Auditorium by Rudolph Ganz, her teacher and internationally known pianist, then appearing in concert here. When Ganz was informed of her death, nine days later, he sent the following telegram to Edward Kurtz, head of the Music Department: "May I express to you, to members of the music faculty, as well as to music students, my deeply felt sympathy on the untimely, cruelly sudden loss of one whom we all loved, respected, and admired. Alta's now silent heart was golden. Her life and spirit of loyalty should remain an inspiring example to young and old. Yours in sorrow, Rudolph Ganz."

On the Sunday following Miss Freeman's death, the College Symphony Orchestra dedicated to her memory a special number of its concert, the "funeral march" from Beethoven's Third Symphony, the "Eroica." Sigma Alpha Iota, the national honorary music fraternity, also announced the establishment of an Alta Freeman Musical Scholarship, to be awarded each year in piano to one woman student. The scholarship will include full piano tuition for a school year. According to Miss Olive Barker, adviser to the music fraternity, former students of Miss Freeman may contribute to the scholarship.

Alta Freeman was born at LeMars, Iowa, February 1, 1892, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Freeman. Following graduation from the Le Mars High School, she attended the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, where she earned a diploma as piano soloist in 1912. With this beginning she studied widely, both in this country and in Europe. Famous pianists under whom she had studied included Ganz, Josef Lhevinne, F. Addison Porter, Felix Fox, Carlo Buonamici, and Alfred Cartot. She had attended many international music conventions in Europe, on which continent she was a visitor of many places. Previous to beginning her work at Teachers College, she had taught at Morningside College, Sioux City, for two years.

Surviving Miss Freeman are her mother, now of San Diego, California; one sister, Mrs. Harry West Haley, Boston, Massachusetts; and one brother, Bert Freeman, Prescott, Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Bixler, the latter known at Teachers College as Betty Coder, B. A. '30, and Milo Bixler, B. A. '30, and little boy, Donny, are living at 1000 Twenty-third Street, Northwest, Canton, Ohio.

The Bixler family report a visit to Niagara Falls, where they saw Ann and Melvin Olson, both former Teachers College graduates. Mrs. Olson before her marriage was Ann Perry, and received the B. A. Degree in 1931. Mr. Olson was awarded the same degree in 1928. They are now living at 155 Sixtieth Street, Niagara Falls.

The Bixlers were in Iowa at Thanksgiving time attending the funeral of Mrs. Coder's father.

Mrs. Raleigh E. Baldwin (Charlotte Coffin), B. A. '26, and Mr. Baldwin now reside at 926 North Main Street, Maryville, Missouri.

Mr. Baldwin assumed his new duties at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College at Maryville on December 1, 1936. He was formerly located at Springfield, South Dakota.

Teachers Discuss Personality, Arithmetic, Music, and Art

TEACHERS College played host during March to four state-wide conferences, three of them together drawing approximately 500 Iowa teachers and the fourth bringing nearly one hundred college women to Cedar Falls.

Convening on Saturday, March 13, were three of the gatherings: the all-Iowa conference of representatives of college women's self-governing associations, sponsored by the Women's League; the Third Annual Conference on the Teaching of Arithmetic, sponsored by the Department of Mathematics; and the Conference on the Teaching of Vocal and Instrumental Music in Elementary and Secondary Schools, sponsored by the Department of Music.

Women Discuss Potentialities

The assembled college women in their various talks and discussions at the Women's League Conference sought for "potentialities within themselves". They looked for methods by which they might peer inside, to analyze their personalities and capabilities, in order that they might also fully prepare themselves to take advantage of what the world has to offer to women today.

Two off-campus speakers appeared before the convention, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, professor of economics at the Connecticut College for Women, New London, and Miss Bess Johnson, principal of the Smouse Opportunity School in Des Moines. The Smouse School is one for handicapped children, and Miss Johnson's philosophy looks toward making the best of personal possibilities. Mrs. Woodhouse is an authority on vocations for women and has long been active as a specialist in women's affairs.

Attending the Conference on Arithmetic, convened the same day as the Women's League convention, were teachers of arithmetic in graded and rural schools, departmental teachers of arithmetic, supervisors, principals, and superintendents. Off-campus speakers at this gathering included Dr. Leo. J. Brueckner, College of Education, University of Minnesota, and now engaged on a survey of elementary education in New York state. Other speakers, teachers in the field, were Velma Masden, P. E. '24, teacher in the fourth grade, Tipton; Ethel Bjorklund, principal, Parkside School, Oelwein; Alice Hach, instructor in the Junior High School, Fort Dodge; and Bernadine Custer, instructor, Junior High School, Newton.

Educators at the Arithmetic Conference

sought means of "humanizing mathematics," of "getting it across" to children, and of designing effective programs for the teaching of arithmetic in the public schools. Conferees witnessed demonstration lessons in the Campus School, and Dr. Eva May Luse, head of the Department of Teaching, presented, "The Reading Route to Arithmetic".

The third single conference held on March 13 brought to the campus Iowa educators interested in the problems of teaching music, motivation of students, and modern trends in music education. Interspersing the talks, given by members of the music faculty and a number of off-campus speakers, were musical programs presented by Teachers College students. The Concert Band, led by student Bob Getchell, of Cedar Falls, the College Symphony Orchestra, the Minnesinger Glee Club, the Bel Canto Glee Club, the College Singers, a woodwind ensemble, a vocal solo by Robert Morris, Nashua, and a violin solo by Norma Sutz, Davenport, were all included on the program.

Alumni on Programs

Off-campus speakers at the Music Conference included Ruth Graper, B. A. '31, supervisor of music, Osage Public Schools; Jack M. Logan, superintendent of Waterloo (East) Public Schools; DWane R. Collins, B. A. '31, supervisor of music, Algona Public Schools; Leo. J. Schula, supervisor of instrumental music, Charles City; and Paul Hummel, supervisor of instrumental music, Waterloo (West) High School.

Having as the theme "the creative approach to art education," the Conference on the Teaching of Art, held March 27, presented as principal speaker, Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art, Chicago Public Schools. Because of her understanding of school art problems, Miss Robertson was of inspirational and practical help to the conferees. She followed both her morning and afternoon talks by leading forum discussions.

The conference was attended by art supervisors, superintendents, and principals, as well as elementary and upper grade teachers interested in creative art as an end in contemporary education.

Boom! Boom! Band Born In South Hall Basement

THAT the Teachers College band may be a child of adversity was revealed in a letter to the ALUMNUS, in which J. L. McLaughlin, M. Di. '92, relates the motives and the real beginning of the first band at Iowa State Normal School. It all happened back in the early 90's, when the cadet officers used to "strut their stuff." In fact, it was the picture of this proud group, appearing in the July, 1936, issue of the ALUMNUS, that unlocked the door to Mr. McLaughlin's memory. But let the writer tell his own story.

Mr. McLaughlin held a conscientious objection against military drill. "Perhaps," he relates, "it was because I never got farther than a mere sergeant that the whole thing was sour grapes to me . . . I lay awake nights, worried myself into a decline and almost lost grades over trying to figure out how to beat the General Orders."

Finally, just finally, an inspiration came. Why not start a band?

"Only two of the boys," says Mr. McLaughlin, "knew which end of the things to blow into . . . We had no instruments and no money, but we had several thousand dollars worth of desire to get out of drill."

"Hearing that there were some old discarded instruments in Waterloo," says Mr. McLaughlin, "we hitched a freight train ride and went down to look 'em over . . . Found them in the back room of a blacksmith shop, battered and bent. But we pounded out some of the dents and I struck an arrangement to buy them on time, or rent them as we should decide."

"We found ten boys who were willing to make the supreme sacrifice. President Seerley gave us a basement room in South Hall—with the reservation that he would revoke the offer, if it should prove too terrible. We hired a downtown barber for $3.00 a lesson. He could play any instrument in the bunch, and could use swear words to beat anything any of us had ever heard before. He was an excellent musician, but hard to be kept sober long enough to play anything . . . We sometimes thought he even played better when he was tipsy!"

One day the band was ready for its debut. It was Decoration Day, 1890. Mr. McLaughlin writes, "We could march, and we could play two or three pieces, among them a dirge, 'Flee as a Bird.' But we could not play and march at the same time. Just couldn't get started to doing both at once. But we received an ovation that even beat the Colonels. The band played at commencement the following June, when Governor Horace Boies was present. The next session of the Legislature appropriated $500 for band instruments and the band members sent the old instruments back to the rummage room of the blacksmith shop in Waterloo. Such was the triumph over odds achieved by the first band at the Iowa State Normal School.

The only names which Mr. McLaughlin recalls are those of LeRoy Wescott, M. Di. '94, first cornetist, who died September 27, 1929; and Joe Vance, M. Di. '98, tuba player, who died September 16, 1933. The writer recalled that the band had two cornets, two altos, one trombone, one baritone, one tuba, a bass drum and snare drums. "The original bass drum," Mr. McLaughlin writes, "was a relic that we found in the basement of old Central Hall."

But memories of the "good old days" do not put Mr. McLaughlin in the class with those who think that present-day youth are on the dead run to going wrong. "I envy you young people your glorious opportunities," says Mr. McLaughlin. "We oldsters must soon step off the stage for you boys, and we'll do it with confidence that you'll carry on and that the world will be the gainer for the change."

Secretary of the northwestern district of the American Bible Society, Mr. Laughlin is an authority on the history of the Bible and has translated that book into several languages. He received the M. Di. Degree from the Normal School in 1892. So far during his life, he has made 26 ocean voyages, going to Europe, Asia, and the Far East, and has traveled around the world four times.

Margaret Schrubbe, B. A. '33, teacher of English in the high school of the Edison Institute in Dearborn, Michigan, writes: ". . . my work here is so completely different from anything I've ever known that each day is like a new adventure . . . The school children spend one day out of each week working in the shops at the laboratory, for which they are paid at the rate of 25 cents an hour . . . Mr. Ford's Old-Fashioned Dancing Parties (formal affairs) come at regular intervals."

Basketeers Show Improved Brand of Court Work

THE building-up process started by Coach Arthur Dickinson a year ago following a dismal basketball season showed its first effects in 1937. This does not mean that the team was a phenomenal winner, for it was not, but it does mean that the brand of basketball displayed in the season just closed was better than that of any season in the past four years. Then, too, the percentage record gave the Panthers a higher rating this year than in 1935 or 1936.

Final Coe Game a Thriller

The team won five of 12 games and three of eight in North Central Conference competition. Most gratifying to all Teachers College followers, and to Coach Dickinson, was the thrill-packed 35 to 34 win over Coe. The game, won on a basket by Bob Curtis in the last 90 seconds, was one of the hardest-fought games in the history of the rivalry between the two schools. It was the first time since December 14, 1933, that a Tutor five had won from Coe.

Other wins for the Teachers College team were over Grinnell College and South Dakota State, one each, and two from Omaha University.

Returning to the fast-breaking type of offense, the Panther team was ranked by Jack North, veteran sports editor of the Des Moines Tribune and one of the game's most popular officials, as the best Teachers College team he had seen in 10 years.

Only three positions remained the same all season, George Pederson, forward; Curtis, center; and Darrell Black, guard. George Miner, Jimmy Manship, and Bill Sims took turns at the forward post opposite Pederson, with Sims finally getting the call in the final games of the year.

Johnny Lee, Sac City sophomore, started the season at the other guard, but was ousted by Roman Yatchak midway in the year.

Six Seniors on Squad

Pederson, Black, Manship, Griffin Eggers, Glenn Smaha, and Keith McCabe were the seniors on the squad. Only Smaha, a transfer from Iowa State, had not been a letter-winner on the squad in previous years.

Curtis led the team in scoring for the second straight year with a total of 116 points on 45 field goals and 26 free throws. Pederson was second with 74. Black, Sims, and Miner ranked third, fourth, and fifth with 29, 27, 25.

Basketball Scores for 1936-37

Grapplers Win Five Meets

With the close of the successful 1937 wrestling season, the Iowa State Teachers College fans bade farewell to the greatest winner in the history of the sport here. When Ray Cheney walks across the graduating platform this spring, he will carry a record of 18 victories, one loss, and one draw in three years of competition.

Cheney was undefeated in his sophomore and senior years and was named the man of greatest value to his team in his first year. His lone loss was to Larson of Iowa in 1936.

The team won four meets, lost two, and drew one against the Big Ten, the Big Six, and the Midwest Conferences.

Davis Natvig and Ivan Moore, 118 and 126 pound members of the team, ranked second in scoring behind Cheney. Cheney collected 31 points, Natvig 28, and Moore 23½. Moore won six and drew one to rank as the only other undefeated member of the 1937 team.

Other members of the team were Eddie Stewart, 118; Keith Bueghly, 135; Joe Mathers, 155; Wilmar Dubes, 165; Gordon Stainbrook, 165; LeRoy Rechenmacher, 175, and Melvin Nelson and Carroll Cook, heavyweights.

Cheney, Bueghly, Mathers, and Nelson are the seniors on the team.

The 1937 season:

- I. S. T. C. 15½; Iowa State College 16½.
- I. S. T. C. 17½; Kansas State College 10½.
- I. S. T. C. 9½; University of Minnesota 20½.
- I. S. T. C. 24; University of Wisconsin 10.
- I. S. T. C. 23½; Cornell College 4½.
- I. S. T. C. 32; University of Missouri 0.
- I. S. T. C. 16; University of Iowa 16.

Loss of Nine Lettermen Worries Track Coach

ACCORDING to Coach Arthur Dickinson, the loss of nine 1936 lettermen might just as well have been labeled the "loss of the 1937 North Central track title." If Dickinson's prediction comes true, it will be the first time since 1927 that Teachers College has not had at least one conference title to show for its track season. From 1928 through 1935 the Panthers won the Iowa loop championship and then added the North Central crown in 1935 and 1936.

Only Eight Back

Only eight lettermen will be back to serve as a background for 13 sophomores of some ability. George Pederson, high jumper, is the only league champion to return. Other lettermen include Dean Alderman, dashman; Lloyd Gnagy, holder of the school javelin record; Don Stout, jumper; Dick Long, pole vaulter and high jumper; Ralph Smith, middle distances; Merle Weiner, also a 440 and 880 man, and Reuben Tesch, distance man.

Numeral winners who will be on hand include Cyril Cranny, broad jumper and dashes; Don Greene, James Dycus, Stephen Sanders, and Tom Nicholson, distance runners; Charles Dayhoff, Joe Stone, Richard Zellhoefer, Roy Lundquist, Ralph Isbell, and Verne Kruse, middle distances; Henry Loats, high jump; and Roy Olson, javelin and discus.

In addition to the above three men there will be Keith McCabe, letter-winning broad jumper in 1935; Jim Hinshaw, sprinter, Melvin Nelson, and John Holt, weight men; all members of the squad last year. John Magovich, Wilbert La-Beau, and James Trotto, transfer students, will also be members of the squad.

The 1937 schedule will break a precedent of several years standing when it opens with a dual meet at Grinnell instead of the annual Teachers College relays at Cedar Falls.

Two indoor meets were on the schedule, a small group of men attending the North Central relays at Naperville, Ill., and the Armour Tech relays at Chicago on March 13 and 20.

The outdoor schedule:

April 10—Grinnell at Grinnell.

April 17—Teachers College Relays at Cedar Falls.

April 23-24—Drake Relays at Des Moines.

May 1—Dakota Relays at Sioux Falls.

May 8—Triangular Meet at Cedar Rapids.

May 15—South Dakota State at Cedar Falls.

May 22—North Central Conference at Grand Forks, North Dakota.

June 5—Marquette Relays at Milwaukee, Wis.

Alumnus Carr and Team Score Class B Teams into A Bracket

It's Easy; If You Have Only Thirteen Men in School, Use All of Them For Basketball Team

When Class B basketball teams decide to meet Class A teams in tournament play rather than face a thirteen-man high school's thirteen-man squad, things really have "come to a pretty pass."

But if you were the coaches of these same teams you would do the same thing. You, too, would find it easier to stop Class A fives than to attempt to halt the march of Maloy's undefeated quintet, a team which has not been held to less than a twelve-point win all season.

The Maloy high school squad, made up of every one of the thirteen men in school, went to the state meet last year under the direction of Maurice Carr, B. S. '35, a forward who led the same school to the finals seven years ago as a player. This year the team again appeared headed toward the final round at Des Moines. Only Diagonal and Ottumwa have been able to halt the team in two years. Diagonal, always a powerful team, was beaten 40 to 17 in the county finals last month, a mute demonstration of the reason for the switch of Class B teams to the Class A meet.

Incidentally, this situation probably brings an Iowa high school basketball team to the district meet for the first time without playing a single game.

Maloy's coach was graduated from Teachers College in 1935 after completing one of the finest cage careers any forward has ever had at the institution. An all-state college forward, Carr was named the player of greatest value to the Panther team in his senior year, during which time he had scored 171 points in 16 games.

April Skies Brighten for Baseball; Outlook Fair

THE gloomy cloud which has overhung the baseball prospects for the past three years appears to have lifted just a trifle as the 1937 season approaches. Not that Coach Lawrence Whitford is counting upon one of his greatest teams, far from it. But he is counting upon a more stable aggregation due to the presence of 13 lettermen on the squad.

Every regular from the 1936 nine is on hand again, with the exception of Johnny Champlin, third baseman. In addition, Merton Blake, pitcher, and LaVerne Ostrem, catcher, both members of 1935, will return for further competition this season.

Four Lettermen for Mound Staff

Blake's return will give Whitford four lettermen around which to construct his mound staff. Gordon Blanchard and Melvin Kensinger, the leading 1936 flingers, as well as Norman "Jimmy" Manship, relief pitcher and general utility ace, will constitute the backbone of the staff. Some assistance is expected from four sophomores, Allen Kane, fire-ball righthander; Harvey Kimball, Glenn Smaha, and Luverne Duns-moor, the first lefthander on the squad since the graduation of Dick Rollins.

Around the infield the Panthers will find Bob Curtis, first base; Griffin Eggers, second base; and Lennie St. Clair, shortstop. Either Jimmy Manship or Tom Moats, a numeral man in 1935 who was not in school last year, is expected to handle the third base job. Moats, however, is having trouble with a knee injury and may not be in shape to play.

Curtis may have to fight off the challenge of a pair of pitchers to keep his position, for both Blanchard and Smaha are first-class first basemen. Both have had trouble with their arms during the past year and may turn to infield duty because of their heavy hitting. Blanchard, most valuable player on the 1936 team, led his mates in hitting with a .375 average.

Tommy Hanifan, diminutive second baseman, and Earl Kempf, first basemen, are the only sophomore infielders likely to see much action.

1936 Sophomore Outfield Intact

The 1936 all-sophomore outfield has moved up intact and is expected to hold off the challenge of a group of powerful newcomers, including Roman Yatchak, junior college star at Ironwood, Michigan. Louis Breitbach, Harold Church, Bernard Hughes, and Hubert Missildine are the first-year men who will be bidding for the post held by Ken Perry, second leading hitter last season with a .370 average, and Ed Nash, and Melvin Mohr.

The catching department is probably the most strongly fortified position on the entire team. George Hutchison, generally rated as one of the greatest catchers ever to attend the Teachers College, Leland Snell, and LaVerne Ostrem, all lettermen, will be back. Ostrem was a regular in 1935, but was out of school last season.

William Bolt, 190 pounds of fire and scrap, who did not report for freshman baseball last year because of an operation, and Ray Blake, numeral winner, are the newcomers who will be forcing the three lettermen to the limit. Bolt will probably be tried in the outfield or at first base if it is found that he can be spared from catching duties.

No schedule had been announced by the Athletic Department as this publication went to press, but it is expected that the Panthers will play from 12 to 16 games, including contests with Iowa State and Western State Teachers College of Macomb, Illinois.

Tragedies? Comedies?

Editor Wants News From "I" Men

For three years the Alumnus office has been working on a compilation of the athletic history of the Iowa State Teachers College. One of its greatest difficulties has been the location of accurate records of athletic contests prior to 1915. Therefore, the Editor is making this appeal to all graduates and former students of the school:

If you have any information about the results of the football, basketball, baseball, or track seasons, will you please send it to this office? If you have any record of the lettermen, please let us know who they were and in what sports. And you lettermen, why not drop us a line and tell us how many letters you won and on what teams while you were students at I. S. N. S. or the Teachers College?

And why not tell us about the contests you used to have, the humorous incidents that must have cropped up during the course of every season, the dramas, the comedies, and the tragedies of the days when you made history in Cedar Falls.

Every Grid Post "Wide Open" In Spring Football Practice

THROWING every position on the team wide open, Coach Clyde L. "Buck" Starbeck issued invitations for spring practice to 58 Teachers College football men the last week in February.

"Lettermen or beginner, it makes no difference," said the aggressive Panther coach, "I'm looking for the 11 best blockers and tacklers on the squad, and when I find them they'll be the team."

Intra-Squad Games Each Saturday

With the invitation went the warning to all candidates that a willingness and a desire to participate in spring practice would have a great deal to do with the personnel of the 1937 football team. Starbeck will devote five days a week to drills in fundamentals with a regular intra-squad game each Saturday throughout spring drills, which were to start as soon as weather permitted. Although 58 men were invited, Starbeck announced that any man in school will be more than welcome.

With spring practice to serve as the training ground, Starbeck will ask his men to report next fall prepared to scrimmage at once. Only men who compete in track and baseball will be excused from drills.

Invitations Issued

The men to whom invitations were issued included Walter Brown, Cyril Cranny, Don Blue, all of Cedar Falls; Harold Church, Inglewood, California; Carroll Cook, Dexter; Walter Ditzler, Mason City; Gaylord Indvik, Forest City; Paul Jones, Aurelia; Kenneth Kelley, Ames; Orval Mecklenburg, Morning Sun; Lester Reynolds, Biwabic, Minnesota; and Joe Terze, Ironwood, Michigan; all lettermen.

Herbert Hamilton, Russell Hersch, Walter Johnson, Marvin Jones, James Jordan, Orville Kahler, Leo Kagan, Wilmer Keiser, John Lee, Paul Miller, Roy Minnis, Alfred Moeller, Fred Nus, Henry Peterson, Howard Robey, Warren Raver, LeRoy Rechenmacher, Bernard Reinhart, Carleton Rider, Jack Ross, Harry Schley, Charles Sharpe, Arthur Shirk, William Sims, Gordon Stainbrook, Benny Taylor, William Tiffany, Kenneth Urquhart, Harold Way, Louis

Breitbach, Kenneth Weatherwax, and Clifford Winter.

Tennis Squad to Miss Reeves-McNabb Combination

The tennis outlook will be a strange one at the Teachers College this spring, for there will be no Stanley Reeves and Bill McNabb on hand to steady the squad. Reeves and McNabb, who so completely dominated the North Central Conference for two years that the athletic board gave them the first major tennis letters in the history of Teachers College, have graduated leaving three lettermen to carry the burden in 1937.

George Miner, Darrell Black, and Richard Kadesch, lettermen, will team with Ed Trefzger, Roy Martin, and Malcolm McLelland, sophomores, in an effort to continue the rule of the conference started by the Reeves-McNabb combine two years ago.

As with baseball, no official schedule had been settled upon as the Alumnus went to press, but the team will have about seven meets, including encounters with Coe, Iowa State, and Grinnell.

Freshmen Take Four of Five Tilts

Teachers College freshman winter sports teams lost but one contest of the five scheduled, a 28 to 18 loss to Cornell's powerful yearling basketball team.

The freshman wrestling team won its only meet for a perfect season, trouncing another of Cornell's strong teams, 29 to 3. Walt Hummel, 126; Cliff Orton, 135; Marvyn Bahling, 145; and Leo Kagan, heavyweight, won falls, while Bud Hummel, 118; Lyle Fraser, 155; and Howard Rabey, 165, won decisions.

Led by Lyle Dodd, center, the Panther Cubs won three of their four games, downing Marshalltown Junior College twice, 34 to 18, and 40 to 19, and gaining a thrilling 24 to 23 win over the Coe College freshmen.
